Trainer Clawed To Death by Bear

LIBERTYVILLE, Ill. — An animal trainer was clawed to death by a 500-pound bear Tuesday night while his fiancée and a friend tried to lure the animal away.

Paul Lemery, 28, entered the European bear's cage for a training session. His fiancée, Shirley Rodriguez, 28, said she was getting a muzzle for the bear when she heard Lemery shriek.

Miss Rodriguez and Roland Racine, an employee, dashed into the cage and tried to beat the huge bear away from its victim with a pike pole and a broom.

When force failed, Miss Rodriguez

Inspect Soil Practices with Dist. Officials

Harrisburg and Eldorado business men yesterday inspected a small portion of Saline county's five million dollar a year industry.

That figure is Saline county's annual gross income from agriculture, Tom Morgan, farm planner for the Saline County Soil Conservation district, told the group of 23—a half dozen from Eldorado and the remainder from Harrisburg—yesterday before the farms of Ewell Harris in Galatia township and Frank Russell in Raleigh township were visited.

Conducting the tour were A. A. Gholson, Cecil Nelson and Mr. Harris, directors of the Soil Conservation district, and Mr. Morgan.

Potential for Expansion

Mr. Morgan briefed the group at the Harrisburg city hall before the automobile caravan departed, declaring the $5,000,000 grossed from agriculture in 1954 about equals the amount paid in wages to all persons employed in Saline county coal mines during the same period.

He told of the wonderful potential for expansion in the agricultural industry.

"We have not begun to approach the maximum gross annual income possible to be obtained from Saline county farms," he declared. "It appears that the agricultural industry is rapidly approaching the time when it will become the major contributor to the basic economy of the county and supply the economic stability needed."

Mr. Morgan pointed out that there are no new lands to add to agriculture in the county, and spoke of the possibilities of expanding the productivity of the land we now have, through better farming practices.

District Formed in 1946

The Saline county Soil Conservation district was formed in 1946 for this reason, to help farmers get more out of their land and to conserve the resources of the farm, he stated. He produced charts which showed how farms can increase in potential through fertilization, proper planting, and erosion prevention measures.

Pay Only For What You Get

Subscribers to The Daily Register who receive their papers by carrier boy are again advised they are not expected to pay in full if the boy fails to deliver papers regularly.

You would not expect to pay a store for merchandise not received. That is sound business.

If your carrier misses you, you are entitled to deduct five cents for each copy missed, if your weekly rate is 30 cents.

Your carrier has a contract with The Daily Register to service customers within a certain area. He buys his papers at wholesale rate and sells them at retail. The difference between what he pays for his papers and what he collects is his profit.

He should not expect full pay if he does not give full service.

By the same token, if he delivers your papers regularly, he is entitled to receive his pay regularly, so he may pay for his papers and have his legitimate profit.

Extinguish Grass Fire

The Harrisburg fire department extinguished a grass fire in the 1300 block of South McKinley avenue at 12:30 p. m. yesterday.

Outstanding Register Carriers Presented Awards at Kiwanis

Three Daily Register carrier boys were presented awards last night at a meeting of the Kiwanis club at the Masonic temple. They were:

Eddie Quade, a junior in high school, son of Betty Quade, 412 North Granger street;

Bobby Cummins, a junior in high school, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Cummins, 615 South Land street;

Billy Upchurch, in the eighth grade at junior high school, son of Mr. and Mrs. Kenneth Upchurch, 419 South McKinley.

The awards, including certificates of merit, lapel pins and sweater emblems, from the Inland Daily Press Association and The Daily Register, are presented annually at a meeting of the Kiwanis club. Last night they were presented by Herman Barnett, business and circulation manager of The Daily Register. The awards are presented to the three Daily Register carrier boys who are declared outstanding through their promptness of delivery and service to their customers.

Fred Wunderlich, member of the club and lieutenant governor elect of Kiwanis Division 16, explained the various kinds of insurance policies in an address to the club.

Four basic types of insurance, he explained, are whole life, limited pay, endowment and term. He outlined the need for the four basic types and explained other types of insurance such as mortgage term which branch from the basic policies.

"Insurance has branched out in many ways from the general policies with which it started," Mr. Wunderlich stated. "People now must place their dependency and confidence in their agents who find out a person's need and then advise what insurance should be carried," he said.

Brink's Bandits Get Life; Loot Is Unrecovered

BOSTON — Eight Brink's bandits began serving life sentences today and locked up with them was the secret of what happened to more than a million dollars.

The life terms were imposed Tuesday by Superior Judge Felix Forte after the state recommended the maximum penalty for the $1,218,211 robbery at Brink's Inc. on Jan. 17, 1950.

The stiff sentences ended a long chapter in crime for the Halloween-masked gang convicted early Saturday by a Suffolk County jury.

Sentenced were Joseph F. McGinnis, 53, gang mastermind; Adolph (Jazz) Maffie, 45; Anthony Pino, 49; Vincent J. Costa, 42; Michael V. Geagan, 48; Henry Baker, 50; Thomas F. Richardson, 49; and James I. Faherty, 45; all of greater Boston.

The men were immediately surrounded by state police troopers armed with shotguns and removed by special van to the $9 million maximum security prison at Walpole.

Only $68,000 has been recovered by investigators. The FBI found the money rotting in a beer cooler during a surprise raid last June on a Boston contracting office.

For one man not present, the sentences came as a final stroke of vengeance. Joseph (Specs) O'Keefe, confessed bandit whose "I was there" story sent his one-time pals to prison, gave a grim satisfied nod when told of the punishment.

Potts Bound Over To Grand Jury

Eugene Potts, arrested last week on a warrant charging rape, was bound over to the grand jury and his bond was set at $5,000 following a preliminary hearing held Monday before Justice of the Peace Vern Joyner Jr. Potts had been out of the penitentiary only 30 days after serving nearly four years for armed robbery when arrested on the rape charge.

World Community Day Program At First Christian Church Nov. 2

World Community Day will be observed in Harrisburg at 7 p. m. Nov. 2 at the First Christian church.

To prepare for the event the following committee from six different churches met at the home of the president Bess Pemberton: Margaret Hart, Bee Holland, Gladys Aldridge, Grace Hiller, Alta Johnson and Lolo Eddy.

"Human Rights," based on Galatians 5 the theme of the international organization seemed to the committee a timely one for 1956.

"United Church Woman" the official magazine for U. C. W., in its September issue stressed the facts that in 1956 after 1900 years of Christianity 200,000,000 people are not free. One of its main articles appeared under the caption "Security Rests on the Growth of a World Community." In keeping with this belief U. C. W. of this community has arranged for the church women of Harrisburg to think together and share with others on Nov. 2.

Among the features of the program will be a "March of the Nations," a film "Together" and a responsive worship service on the theme "Freedom." World Community Day is the one time when U. C. W. asks for overseas aid to friends abroad to contribute to the peace of the world. Used clothing for men and boys over sixteen is needed. Yard goods for shirts and overalls, as well as blankets, is on the list. Nylon hose for the widows of Japan to make into flowers are requested.

To gain inspiration for service the women of the southern area of the state met in an all day session at Marion recently. The area co-chairmen, Mrs. William Baker of Marion and Miss Bess

J. W. Mahan, 83, Dies at Equality

John W. Mahan, 83, died at his home in Equality yesterday at 3:45 p. m.

He is survived by his wife, Nettie, and one brother, Thomas J. Mahan of Equality.

The body lies in state at the A. K. Moore funeral home in Equality and funeral plans are incomplete.

Pemberton of this city, planned the meeting and presided.

Local women attending were Bee Holland, Carrie Young, Margaret Hart, Faye Farrar and Bess Pemberton. Representatives from eight cities attended: Du Quoin, Carbondale, Benton, Harrisburg, Marion, Pinckneyville, Centralia and Metropolis.

Three state officers spoke—Mrs. Moll Quincy, state president, the "World Situation"; Mrs. T. Trogdow Jr., Paris vice president, on the organization, using a flannel-graph, and Mrs. Walter Merkelbach of Centralia, Christian social relations chairman, who talked on "Spiritual Values."

To further instruct the councils in their work at caravan of state workers will tour southern Illinois. They will stop in Harrisburg Oct. 23 or 24.

Richard Gidcomb, 7, Hurt When Bicycle Hits Parked Truck

Richard, seven-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Winston Gidcomb, who operate a grocery store on West Sloan street, was injured during the noon hour yesterday when the bicycle he was riding ran into a Dairy Brand ice cream truck parked in front of the store.

The boy, who was just starting back to school, was rushed to Harrisburg hospital by his father. There several stitches were made to close a cut above one of his eyes.

He was taken home and put to bed and will be out of school the remainder of the week, his mother reported.

Bridegroom Won't Change Clothes, Bride Gets Divorce

PATERSON, N. J. — Mrs. Joyce Kulp, who testified her bridegroom climbed into bed on their wedding night clad in sweat pants and sweat socks, won a preliminary divorce decree Tuesday. Mrs. Kulp said that 12 days after her marriage to Robert T. Kulp, Dec. 13, 1952, he still had not changed his clothes.

Ex-President Testifies at Senate Hearing

Fulbright Warns He Is Jeopardizing Chances for Parole

CHICAGO — A former banker charged today that ex-State Auditor Orville Hodge closed his bank as "part of an overall pattern" to gain an interest in it himself.

Henry J. Beutel, former president of the now defunct First State Bank of Elmwood Park, testified before the Senate Banking Committee.

The committee, headed by Sen. J. William Fulbright, is investigating banking ramifications of the fraudulent check scandal which sent Hodge to prison.

Beutel testified that Hodge's closing of the bank on April 11, 1953, was "unwarranted."

Hodge subsequently acquired an interest of about $320,000 in the Elmwood Park bank which was formed to succeed Beutel's bank.

Beutel said his bank was in "sound" financial shape despite critical reports by Hodge's examiners and by Eugene Gover, district head of the Federal Deposit Insurance Corp.

Beutel said there was "personal animosity" between himself and Gover.

Had Negotiated Loan

The former bank president said he felt the bank's position was sound despite the controversial purchase of two million dollars worth of personal loan paper from Bankers Discount Corp. of Dallas, Tex.

Nevertheless, he said, he heeded the complaints of the FDIC and Hodge and had negotiated a one million dollar loan from Bank of America to get rid of the personal loan paper when Hodge closed the bank.

"If we had had a constructive banker in the state auditor's chair, one with no personal ambition or motives, this matter could have been settled without closing the bank," he said.

Beutel said the closing of the Elmwood Park bank and two others he owned in 1953 worked a hardship on the communities they served.

Beutel, now on probation on charges of misapplying bank funds, said he was indicted for diverting bank funds into political contributions to insure getting deposits of state money.

He said he made the political contributions to insure keeping

100 Attend PTA Conference Held At Carrier Mills

Approximately 100 parents, teachers, principals and superintendents of schools registered yesterday at the annual conference of District No. 30 of the Illinois Congress of Parents and Teachers held at the Carrier Mills Central grade school.

Mrs. Wendell Bramlet, district director, presided over the meeting which began at 2:30 p. m. Mrs. David Thompson, Elmhurst, program service chairman of the I. C. P. T., spoke on the subject "Program Know How" which was most informative.

Also a guest speaker was Mrs. Martin Seifert, Wilmette, who is scholarship chairman of the I. C. P. T. Her topic was "Teacher Recruitment Our Responsibility."

Following dinner the evening session opened at 7. Mrs. Seifert and Mrs. Thompson again spoke after which Otis Keeler, Springfield, public relations chairman of the I. C. P. T., talked on "What Can the P. T. A. do."

A nominating committee from the three counties represented was elected to select a district director who will be voted on at the conference next October.

What Price Discipline?

Editorial — BY BRUCE BLOSSAT Look at your watch as it ticks off 12 seconds. In that tiny span a major crime has been committed somewhere in the United States.

Now stare at it for a solid four minutes, if you can. In that time someone will have killed a fellow American.

These are just ways of saying that crime in the nation is soaring to its all-time peak. According to FBI Director J. Edgar Hoover, the totals for major offenses are up more than 14 per cent over last year.

If the trend continues, there will be 2,500,000 such crimes committed for the first time in U. S. history, and it will be the fifth straight year with a total exceeding 2,000,000.

One of the astonishing aspects of the nation's crime situation is that rates go on rising both in the rural areas and in the cities.

One can find a lot of reasons—tensions, stress, excessive competition—why crimes both against the person and against property are mounting in our overcrowded communities.

But the upward rural trend suggests that underlying the whole phenomenon is some kind of breakdown of our society's disciplinary structure. Evidently neither the family, the church, the school nor any other controlling element is exerting the force it should for social order.

Admittedly the task is a colossal one. Every day that passes, we in this country seem to have more and more material things which are the symbols of the desirable to our people. At the same time, we continue to produce less and less ourselves to satisfy our wants, and depend more and more upon the magic dollar to get them for us.

Inevitably in such a situation there will be people who will either try to take material things without paying for them, or seize the dollars with which to buy them.

In addition, our swelling population, the great shifts within the nation, and mixing and throwing into close quarters of national and racial strains, all these have produced a social friction that again and again erupts in violence, mostly on the city streets. Taken together with the competition for the dollar and the shiny symbols of our life, these outbursts sometimes become unmanageable.

The nation's social and moral fabric has been sorely taxed in the effort to apply the needed controls. Our celebrated mobility, with individuals and families moving about from home to home and place to place, works against our sinking the kind of tough roots that help stiffen the moral structure.

In many ways we have made our cities places that by their nature work to defeat discipline. Some of their areas are almost totally unfit for the bringing up of children — tomorrow's juvenile delinquents if not well guided.

Many earnest people in many walks of life are attacking these problems. But no one involved is doing enough, obviously. The crime phenomenon calls for our best brains continuously applied. All agencies — family, school, church and others — may need remodeling if we are to have order. And we may have to remake our cities in ways we have not yet even thought of. The price of inaction is plain.

In Troubled Waters

The Washington Merry-Go-Round

By DREW PEARSON

DREW PEARSON Says: Maybe Len Hall Should Not Let Dulles Campaign; He Lost Greek Votes At Greek Orthodox Convention; Suez Canal Will Be Obsolete In Ten Years.

WASHINGTON.—Chairman Len Hall has been trying to persuade John Foster Dulles to campaign for the GOP ticket, and the secretary of state is wavering. Hitherto he has maintained that for the sake of the bipartisan foreign policy he should keep aloof.

Before Hall urges Dulles further, however, he ought to check with leaders of the Greek Orthodox church, before which Dulles spoke last week.

Prior to Dulles' speech, Archbishop Michael cautioned his cohorts to keep out of Stevenson headquarters which are located in the Sheraton-Park Hotel, also headquarters for the Greek Orthodox convention.

"No political activity, no political activity," the archbishop warned.

Following Dulles' speech, however, he stopped his warning. For Dulles addressed the Greek not about Cyprus where U. S. backing of Britain has been severely criticized, but about the Posnan trials in Poland, a long way from Greece.

Most amazing of all, Dulles indirectly criticized the church in Poland for political activity, which in the opinion of Greek-American listeners did two things:

1. It put him on the same side as the Kremlin, which also opposes church activity in Poland. 2. It put him against the political activity of Greek Catholic Archbishop Makarios, who has been exiled from Cyprus by the British.

Though the Roman Catholic church is involved in Poland, the Greek Orthodox church is just as vigorous in claiming that human relations and political relations are intertwined and that the church has a right to fight for them.

"Dulles probably lost the GOP 100,000 votes by that speech," remarked George Vournas, prominent Greek-American.

SUEZ DICKERING What the foreign ministers meeting at the UN seems to ignore is the need of long-range planning for the Suez Canal and the Near East.

The British and French have been so peeved at John Foster Dulles that for a time just before the New York meeting they refused to give him any inkling of their plans.

But while the world's top statesmen have been haggling over colonialism and legalities, the entire Near Eastern policy of the United States has been on a week-to-week, day-to-day basis.

We have had no long-range plan, no ten-year goal on which to set our sights. Population along the Nile is increasing; the standard of living decreasing. Arab populations are restless. The situation between Israel and the Arab states has been verging on war. Yet the United States has decided its policy on a shifting day-to-day basis. Whatever Mr. Dulles decides on a certain day is American policy; and that may depend on where Mr. Dulles is that day and whom he is talking to.

Meanwhile, the hard facts are that the Suez Canal in ten years will be completely out of date. In ten years it will be carrying 4,000,000 barrels of oil a day to supply Europe. Seventy percent of the world's oil supply lies under the arid sands of the Arab countries, most of it in Saudi Arabia. That oil is essential to European industry, and the increased consumption will mean either a new duplicating canal; or huge tankers will be built to go all the way around Africa; or at least two more pipelines from Iraq and Saudi Arabia to the Mediterranean.

ONCE GREAT EMPIRE All this means constructive planning. It doesn't mean day-to-day dickering over the diplomatic council tables. It means long-range, careful planning for peace and cooperation in the Near East.

At the time of the Roman Empire this little area of the Near East (Syria, Lebanon, Israel, Jordan, Iraq, Saudi Arabia, and Egypt) held 60,000,000 people. Today it holds 25,000,000. Then it was under one government, which, though tyrannical, kept the peace.

Today the area is chopped up into little bitter countries, with only one progressive, forward-looking nation in the area—Israel. Its progressiveness, however, only incurs greater bitterness from Arab neighbors.

Saudi Arabia is rolling in oil royalty money, so much that King Saud doesn't know what to do with it. Egypt in contrast is poverty-stricken. Its average annual income is $94 a year. Its population is infested with trachoma, TB, and venereal disease; seems to get more depressed, poverty-stricken, more diseased each year.

Colonel Nasser was picked by Dulles and his Near Eastern experts as the champion of the underdog. But he has spent his money on Russian arms and forgotten about the fate of his people. He now has about $250,000,000 in Russian arms, and to pay for them he has hocked his national income for years to come.

With these arms, Nasser is almost certain to use them. He has to justify their purchase. That's why Israel is so nervous today. She is the only target.

All this requires statesmanship of the constructive, long-range order, not day-to-day diplomatic haggling.

TRUMAN'S DREAM Talking with Harry Truman in Kansas City, he volunteered his ideas on constructive planning for the Near East.

"The Dead Sea," he said, "is the lowest point in the world—about 1,300 feet below sea level. I proposed when I was in office to dig a canal from the Mediterranean to the Dead Sea and harness that 1,300 foot drop for electric power.

"That would make Israel the industrial area of the Near East. Then I would rebuild the irrigation works of the Tigris and Euphrates. Tamerlane destroyed them, and they've never been built up. They were what made the Garden of Eden.

"Then I would take this wonderful plateau up here in Abyssinia," continued Truman, pointing to his globe. "and make it another breadbasket. People are starving in the Near East while fertile land is going to waste all around them.

"It will continue to go to waste until the people learn the Jews are cousins. If we can get them to cooperate we can make this one of the garden spots of the world."

"Those were some of the things I wanted to do," the ex-President of the United States spoke a little wistfully, as if he would still like to be working at the things he didn't get finished.

AN OPEN LETTER TO YOU!

"BECAUSE OF EVE" is a frank, straight-talking film about birth and procreation.

The story is simple and direct, woven about the three short subjects "The Story of VD," "The Story of Reproduction" and "The Story of Birth."

The realism, simple-dialogue, and problem presentation does much to ease the shock of this hard-hitting picture.

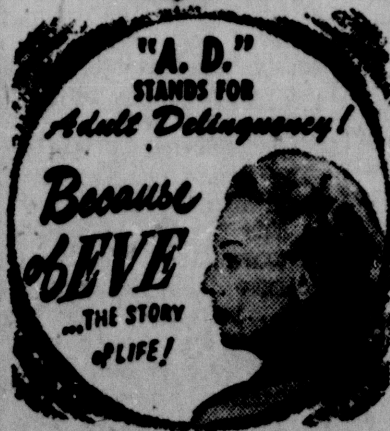

Educational briefs use both live models and animated drawings. It is my personal recommendation that fathers and mothers should view this film WITH their children. While we do not admit unaccompanied children under high school age, WE BELIEVE THAT YOU AS PARENTS with an intimate knowledge of the intellectual maturity and understanding of your sons and daughters, MUST YOURSELVES DETERMINE WHETHER OR NOT YOUR CHILD IS TOO YOUNG TO BENEFIT FROM THIS DIGNIFIED EXPOSE OF ONE OF LIFE'S MOST CLOSELY-GUARDED SECRETS.

By viewing this film with your children in the privacy of your automobile you are in a position to discuss with them immediately, or later, the delicate details of sex on a common ground of intelligent experience.

SIU Swine Specialist Concocts Formula for Eight Orphan Pigs

CARBONDALE, Ill. — Becoming nursemaid to eight 3-day-old orphaned pigs had Southern Illinois University swine specialist Joseph Burnside worried, but he's passed the test.

Recent experience in helping Mrs. Burnside prepare formulas for their newborn son, Jeb, gave Burnside the needed confidence for his new chore.

He concocted a formula of milk, eggs, sugar, minerals and anti-biotics for the tiny pigs. Spare nursing bottles and nipples from the Burnside shelves came in handy in feeding the pigs every four hours during the first week.

The pigs are thriving and soon will be ready to be moved to the university swine center.

Rainbow's Rexall Will Feature 1c Sale Starting Oct. 15th

The penny will have plenty of power at Rainbow's Rexall drug store next week, according to Mr. Bob Keltner. In fact, beginning Monday, October 15th, a single penny will buy up to several dollars worth of merchandise during the following six days, he reports.

This local drug store, together with other Rexall stores across the nation, celebrates the annual Rexall One Cent Sale opening Monday and continuing through the week until closing hours Saturday, October 20th.

During this sale, customers may save by buying two identical Rexall items for the price of one plus a penny. This unique merchandising event was initiated many years ago by the Rexall Drug Company as a means of introducing merchandise to new customers at special low prices. The original sale proved so popular that it has been repeated annually since 1931.

Medicines, baby needs, cosmetics, shaving needs, family and household necessities and many other drug store items go on sale Monday at two for the price of one plus one cent. In addition to hundreds of nationally advertised 1c Sale items, special Bonus Bays are being offered at reduced prices during the week of the sale. All items carry the usual Rexall money-back guarantee.

As a special service to shoppers, Courtesy Advance Shopping List booklets will be available. These booklets may be filled out and left at the store prior to the sale. The merchandise is then reserved for the shopper and may be called for at any time during the sale.

This year's Rexall One Cent Sale is being widely advertised in newspapers, magazines, radio and television.

JIMMY SETS THE YEAR—Actress Margie Little, 35, of Plainfield, N. J., will become the bride of 63-year-old Jimmy Durante "some time next year" she says, in announcing their engagement. The elusive comedian has been sidestepping another march down the aisle since the death of his first wife in 1943.

Wilson Defends Business Policies

PHILADELPHIA — Defense Secretary Charles E. Wilson today challenged the sincerity of those who criticize Eisenhower administration business policies during the election campaign.

Wilson said the nation never had it so good.

He also contended that the "radical left wing of the party," presumably meaning the Democratic party, would substitute planned economy with restrictive controls for GOP policies.

Wilson addressed the Pennsylvania Chamber of Commerce. It was his first political speech of the campaign and the first since undergoing surgery Sept. 24.

Refugees Battle Hong Kong Police

HONG KONG — Two thousand Chinese refugees fought police with bottles and stones today in a resettlement camp riot that started as a quarrel between pro-Nationalist and pro-Communist Chinese.

Two Britons and an unknown number of Chinese were injured in the clash which police broke up by firing tear gas bombs. It was Hong Kong's first political demonstration since 1952.

Social and Personal Items

Former Carrier Mills Resident Weds in Michigan

Announcement is being made of the marriage of Miss Mary Jane Parton, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Paul Parton of Auburn Heights, Mich., formerly of Carrier Mills, and Carl Taylor, son of Mr. and Mrs. Forrest Taylor, also of Auburn Heights.

The ceremony took place in the Sacred Heart Catholic church in Auburn Heights and was attended by 175 guests who were also present at the reception which was held later in Avon Community Center in Avon Township.

The bride's gown of chantilly lace was designed with a low scalloped neckline and short fitted sleeves. A lace headpiece held her fingertip veil. She carried a white orchid on a mother of pearl prayer book.

Attending her were her sister, Helen Ruth Parton, as maid of honor, and Paula June Parton, Patricia Gleyre and Carolyn Hand as bridesmaids. Jeannie Lynn Gene served as flower girl.

Best man was Forrest Taylor of Pontiac, Mich., brother of the bridegroom. Groomsmen were Donald Trula and Lynn Stitz, both of Pontiac, and Steven Wise of Lake Orion.

After a trip around the Great Lakes, Wisconsin and Illinois the couple will reside in Ypsilanti, Mich., where Mr. Taylor is attending Eastern Michigan college. The bride is the niece of Mr. and Mrs. Sidney Robinson of Carrier Mills.

Mrs. Mittie Beers Hostess To Union Grove Unit

The Union Grove Home Bureau unit met Oct. 4 with Mrs. Mittie Beers.

Mrs. Grace Bond, chairman, called the meeting to order and 16 members and four guests were present answering roll call with "the month I prefer to be hostess." The major topic was given by Mrs. Myrtle Ryan and the minor topic was given by Mrs. Ruth Bond.

Two new members were added to the unit: Mrs. Ellen Waladis and Mrs. Luellen O'Brien. Mrs. Doris Emery and Mrs. Edna Laswell were visitors.

Announcements were made and recreation was won by Mrs. Gladys Williams.

Refreshments of angel food cake and ice cream were served with ice drinks.

Delta Alpha Chapter Has Tea For Fall Rushes

Delta Alpha chapter of Delta Theta Tau held a tea Sunday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Garrett Crews in honor of the fall rushes.

The tea table was decorated with a pink organdy cloth and with a centerpiece of pink chrysanthemums in a silver compote. Pink tapers burned in silver candleabra.

Mrs. Nelson Pankey and Mrs. Andy Anderson presided at the tea table. Assistant hostesses were Mrs. Bob Rushing and Mrs. Morris Skaggs.

Especially invited guests were Mrs. Ronnie Riegel, Mrs. Bob Ozment, Mrs. Elmer Earl Wallace, Mrs. Bill Gall, Miss Marlene Cotton, Mrs. Harold Hansen, Mrs. L. P. Neff, Mrs. Bill Ferrell, Mrs. David Bowen, Mrs. Joe McGuire, Mrs. Rae Reinhardt, Mrs. George Edward Dalton.

Others present were Mrs. Jim Sullivan, Mrs. Bob Favreau, Mrs. Louis Murphy, Mrs. Sam Leberman, Mrs. Marion Bradley, Mrs. John Foster, Mrs. Jewell D. Barker.

Rural Mail Carriers And Families Enjoy

Potluck at Herb Gunter Home
The rural mail carriers of Saline county held a potluck supper at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Herb Gunter.

The carriers elected their new officers as follows: Orval Edwards, president; Alonzo Shewmake Jr., vice president; Mary Lois Bynum, secretary and treasurer.

Mary Lois Bynum gave a report on the national convention which she attended in Louisville last August.

The following carriers and their families were present: Mr. and Mrs. Brooks Harris and Robert. Mr. and Mrs. Herb Gunter and granddaughter, Mr. and Mrs. Alonzo Shewmake Jr. and Kenny. Mr. and Mrs. Clinis Abney and Greg, Mr. and Mrs. Norman Albert, Mary Lois Bynum and Mary Jo, Mr. and Mrs. Orval Edwards and Mrs. Ardis Tate.

Mrs. N. N. McKeel of Hudson, N. Y., is visiting in Harrisburg with former friends. She is the house guest of Mrs. C. M. Jones, 211 East Walnut street.

Mrs. Herman Boatright Hostess to Michael Hillegas Chapter

The Michael Hillegas chapter held its October meeting at the home of Mrs. Herman Boatright.

Minutes of the previous meeting were read by Mrs. Tom Wolf who reported the attendance of the district conference at Cairo by Mrs. Harley Shepherd, Mrs. Sam Cape and Mrs. Frank Gray.

It was decided to enter a float in the homecoming parade Friday, Oct. 12. Mrs. Charles Ford and Mrs. Joseph Logsdon are in charge of this project.

Mrs. Frank Gray gave a most interesting and informative talk on the Constitution and National Defense. Mrs. Gray then introduced Mrs. Hal Burnett who spoke on the D. A. R. approved schools and stressed the point that all members bring their Christmas presents wrapped and ready to mail to the school to the November meeting.

Refreshments were served by the hostess, Mrs. Boatright, and her assistants, Mrs. Ralph Brown Sr., Mrs. Everett Hess and Mrs. Paul Hatfield.

Mr. and Mrs. Valgene Gibbons and daughter, Valerie Ann, returned Friday from Wiesbaden, Germany, where they were stationed for a year and a half with the U. S. Army. They plan to make their home in Harrisburg for the present. Mrs. Gibbons is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Wilson and Mr. Gibbons is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Jesse Gibbons.

Seize Slots in Raid at Herrin

HERRIN, Ill. — State police seized about a dozen slot machines and a large quantity of repair parts Tuesday at the Egyptian Bell Machine Co. here.

Capt. Elza Brantley, head of Du Quoin State Police District 13, said that Harry Daily, the owner of the company, had a federal license to repair slot machines. Brantley said the complaint was based on violation of state law.

Brantley said the machines, which were being repaired, and parts will be turned over to county authorities. Brantley said he will file charges of illegal possession of gambling devices against Daily in Williamson County Court.

Why wash your clothes in dirty water?

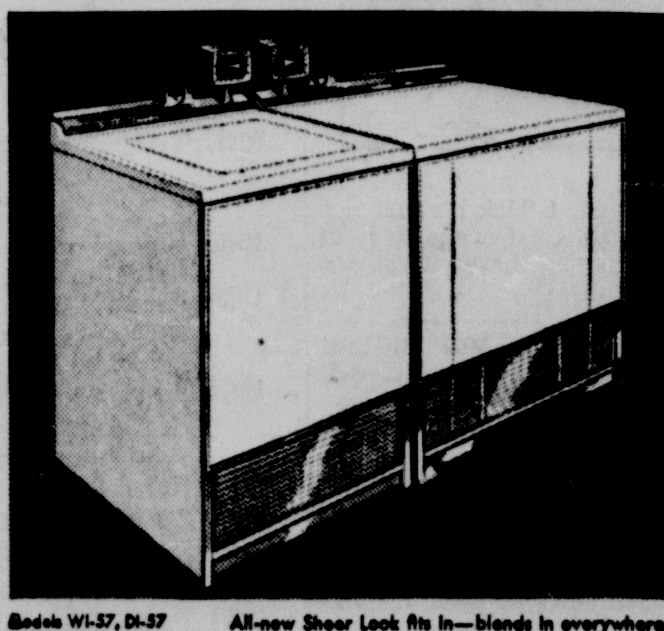

Now you can use spanking-hot fresh water, fresh detergent, on every load!

With the new 1957 Frigidaire Automatic Washer—you can save enough hot water to do as many as 10 extra loads per month—save up to 21 good-sized boxes of detergent a year.

Why is the Frigidaire Automatic the Savingest Washer Ever Built?

More efficient action! See the difference. Final rinse water from a Frigidaire Washer is sparkling clear and clean!

Not only lint but tiniest particles of soap-scum, too—are flushed over the tub and down the drain—with no film left on clothes. The Frigidaire Float-Over Wash and Rinse does it all, with less water—and without a filter trap to clean.

Models W-57, D-57 All-new Shear Lock fits in—blends in everywhere

Illinois C. of C. Urges Defeat Of Blue Ballot

CHICAGO — The Illinois Chamber of Commerce today reiterated its charge that the proposed Blue Ballot Amendment to the revenue article of the Illinois Constitution is too broad and contains serious defects.

Objections to the amendment on which voters will ballot Nov. 6 were outlined in a booklet mailed by the chamber to its statewide membership and interested groups. The chamber urged defeat of the proposal.

LeRoy A. Mote, chairman of the group's State and Local Taxation committee and secretary and counsel of Elgin National Watch Co., said the chamber opposed the amendment because it would "permit virtually any type of tax without adequate safeguards or limitations."

He said the sole protection in the amendment is a prohibition against the levy of a graduated income tax.

"Another major criticism of the amendment," said Mote, "is that it opens the door to excessive classification of personal property."

Whereabouts of Actress a Mystery

NEW YORK — The whereabouts of actress Margaret Sullivan remained a mystery today.

The 45-year-old stage and screen star forced the Columbia Broadcasting System to cancel a television show Monday night when she failed to appear to fill a starring role.

The mystery deepened with reports that Miss Sullivan had become ill and gone to a hospital. Later she was reported well and staying with friends.

She also was reported to have flown to Switzerland to visit her daughter, Brooke, who was secretly married in Paris.

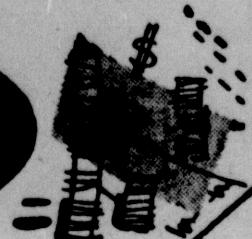

Producer Leland Hayward, Miss Sullivan's former husband, contacted in California Tuesday night said Brooke was living somewhere in Connecticut not in Switzerland and that she had been married last summer.

Says Hodge Closed Bank to Gain Interest

state deposits for a sufficient time to invest them in government bonds.

Beitel said such political contributions by bankers are "common practice."

Hodge Warned

Tuesday, Fulbright called Hodge a liar and told him he may be jeopardizing his chances for parole by refusing to answer the committee's questions.

Fulbright asked Hodge, now serving a 12-15 year prison term, how he spent the money he pilfered from the state treasury.

"I don't know," Hodge responded to the Arkansas Democrat's questions during a public hearing of the U. S. Senate Banking and Currency Committee.

"I think you're lying to the committee," Fulbright snapped.

Hodge's memory had failed completely when he tried to account for a series of fraudulent checks totaling $85,000.

"When we ask you trivial questions your memory works fine," Fulbright said. "But when we ask you about phony checks, you refuse to tell us."

"We have a system of parole," he added. "It seems to me that if you had a more cooperative attitude you'd be more likely to get the benefits of the parole system."

Hintz Refuses To Testify

Hodge was finally excused from the witness stand and Fulbright summoned Edward A. Hintz, former Chicago bank president who authorized the cashing of Hodge's phony checks. Hintz, like Hodge is in prison for his part in the scandal.

Hintz became indignant when newspaper photographers snapped pictures of him in the hearing room, and refused to testify. Fulbright had already insisted that television cameramen keep their lenses away from Hintz.

The senator warned Hintz that his refusal to testify would lead to a contempt citation.

Edward A. Epping, one-time office manager for Hodge and now a convict, also rebelled against taking the witness stand. He cited the Fifth Amendment on the ground that he is still battling 44 indictments in the case.

Fulbright sarcastically noted that "this committee has not had a very fruitful day in the way of testimony."

The investigation was opened by the Senate committee, with Fulbright acting as a one-man committee to determine if the Hodge scandal indicated the need for better and revised federal banking laws.

Justice Dep't Probes Complaints Two Banks Dabbling in Politics

WASHINGTON (AP) — Asst. Atty. Gen. Warren Olney III said today the Justice Department is investigating two complaints that Illinois banks may be dabbling in politics in violation of federal law.

Alaskan Vote Favors Democrats

JUNEAU, Alaska (AP) — Alaska's "weather-vane" election showed increasing signs of good weather for the Democrats today as partial returns trickled in from all of the sprawling territory's 271 precincts.

Alaskans balloted Tuesday for two token U. S. senators and one representative under an Alaska-Tennessee plan which would send their choices to Washington to lobby for statehood.

Democrats were leading in all three races. Their candidate for the territory's non-voting delegate-to-Congress post had piled up a 2-1 lead over his Republican opponent, and Democrats were leading in 21 of 24 contests for House seats in the territorial legislature and in 6 of 9 territorial Senate races.

For almost four decades, the Alaska vote accurately forecast whether the states several weeks later would elect a Republican or a Democrat to the presidency.

Former Norris City Woman Dies At Age 92

Mrs. Iona Fletcher, 92, former resident of Norris City, died in a nursing home in Alton Tuesday at 2 p. m.

The body lies in state at the Turner funeral home in Norris City. The funeral will be Thursday at 11 a. m. at Union Ridge. Rev. Charlie Hedges of Norris City will officiate and burial will be in the church cemetery.

Fire Damages Garage

A fire at 12:20 p. m. today caused slight damage to the garage at the home of Gene Grimes, 412 West Locust. Fire Chief L. G. Martin said the fire started from ignited leaves.

Olney, head of the Justice Department's criminal division, revealed the investigations in prepared testimony before a Senate subcommittee investigating campaign spending.

He said that one complaint alleged that national banks in Chicago "may be involved in political activities" barred by law.

The second complaint alleged that "both state and national banks had made substantial contributions for a political purpose" in Illinois.

In both cases, Olney said, a Justice Department investigation is "pending."

Olney gave no further details on the investigations or the institutions involved.

Under the Federal Corrupt Practices Act, national banks, corporations and labor organizations are forbidden to make campaign contributions to political parties.

Return Two Youths Here

Deputy Sheriff James Lyon today went to Tuscola to return Benny Hartwell and Cecil Simon to Harrisburg.

Hartwell, of Harrisburg, and Simon, from Texas, were arrested a few weeks ago at Joliet in a car that had been stolen at Kan-kakee and found on them were a pistol and some knives taken a few days previously in a burglary of Godard's farm market here.

The youths, who were AWOL from an army camp, were returned to Tuscola to face auto theft charges but authorities there indicated they would not prosecute and the local officer went after them.

$5 Million Farm Income, Businessmen Advised

his farm for the production of those crops for which the land is best suited to produce and to treat each acre of land according to its needs is the goal of the progressive and successful farmer," he stated.

"Working out with the farm owner an economically sound plan of the farm operation which will accomplish the above goal is the further responsibility of the Soil Conservation Service staff.

"Such plans are the sound foundation upon which Saline county farmers can build a lasting industry, geared to reach its maximum potential productive capacity and push upward its annual gross dollar income above the present five million dollar level."

Open to All Farmers
The service, he pointed out, is open to all county farmers. When a farmer signs up for assistance, a detailed survey of the farm is made by the SCS technicians. Soil is classified and an aerial photo is made of the farm. His inventory is gone over with the farmer by the technician and a program is offered the farmer which will enable him to do a good job. Once the farmer decides on what plan and measures he will use, a farm conservation plan is written up as a blueprint for him to follow.

Assistance is also given in getting the practices into operation and in maintaining the practices. The SCS is free, the farmer being responsible for the cost of the measures taken on his farm.

The group first inspected a fall-seeded grass and legume mixture, in which band-seeding was used, on the Sherman Bramlet farm between Wasson and Raleigh. The growth was coming up well.

Yields Increased
Frank Russell told how he made his pasture seedings at his Raleigh township farm. Mr. Morgan explained that his pasture program was well worth the cost involved because of the beef cattle it can take care of. Mr. Russell's gulley control program also was inspected.

At the Ewell Harris farm in Galatia township, Mr. Harris showed large numbers of conservation practices which has brought his farm up from one of mediocrity when he took it over to one of the finest farms in the county.

An example of what he has done can be determined from the yields 15 years ago and now. From a corn yield of 10 to 15 bushels per acre, he got about 75 bushels in 1955. The wheat yield increased from six to eight bushels to 65 bushels in 1954. The oat yield increased from four to six bushels to 75 bushels, and hay from a quarter of a ton to five tons. Eight cows and eight calves in 1942 have increased to 56 cows, 56 calves and 11 yearlings at present.

Stewardship Meeting, Family Dinner Tonight At Presbyterian Church

The first Stewardship meeting and family dinner of 1956 will be held this evening at the Presbyterian church.

Each year during the month of October Stewardship dinners are held each Wednesday at the Presbyterian church and tonight is the first of the year. Others will be held Oct. 17, 24 and 31.

Following the dinner at 6 p. m. there will be a Stewardship film, "This High Calling." All members and friends of the church are invited.

TRADING PICKS UP ON STOCK MARKET

NEW YORK (AP)—Trading picked up slightly on the stock market today after running at a new low for three years in the early dealings.

Prices which had opened in a very narrow range turned up with the exception of the rails that were held down by small losses in some of the leading issues.

Noon Dow Jones averages: Industrials 482.69, up 1.37; rails 158.05, off 0.09; utilities 66.10, up 0.03, and 65 stocks 170.66, up 0.27.

Blast Shatters Plant; Six Hurt

GLENWOOD, Iowa (AP) — An explosion shattered the interior of a two-story packing plant early today, injuring at least six men, including a rabbi.

The blast, which jarred the area for miles around, touched off a small fire in the Roth Packing Co. plant but it was quickly extinguished.

No official estimate of damage was available but unofficial estimates said it might run as high as $500,000.

Ike Charges Stevenson with Irresponsibility

PITTSBURGH (AP) — President Eisenhower charged Adlai E. Stevenson Tuesday night with political irresponsibility in implying the Republican administration cares nothing for the "little fellow."

In a major speech to an enthusiastic crowd of 15,000 at Hunt Armory, Mr. Eisenhower declared the Democratic orators have "concealed or twisted" the facts.

"Those political orators promise bigger government spending on every front—lower taxes for every citizen—all wrapped up in the bright package of a balanced budget," the President said at a GOP rally which climaxed a late afternoon and evening of ovals in the traditionally Democratic steel center.

A capacity crowd of 11,000 jammed into the armory and another 4,000 packed streets and alleys outside to hear Mr. Eisenhower's 25-minute nationwide radio-television talk over an NBC hookup.

In his speech, Mr. Eisenhower departed from his prepared text when he accused Democratic orators of a "whole series of curious statements falsely implying" that his administration cares nothing for "the man they rather patronizingly call the little fellow."

"By the way," he said, "who has the right to call any American 'the little fellow'? Doesn't the word American still mean we are all equal?"

"I wonder just what kind of political children they think the American people are. I also wonder what kind of man they think I am."

Mr. Eisenhower said Stevenson and his Democratic running mate, Estes Kefauver, are making a "record of clattering campaign oratory" and cited as examples the issues of "big business" versus "small business," the draft, H-bomb tests, national defense and peace.

"They say your government is indifferent to labor," he said. "They say your government is negligent in social security—indifferent to the unemployed."

"This amounts to saying that your government has no interest in the people of America. This amounts to the charge that your government has betrayed your trust. Such talk is political irresponsibility at its worst."

Trucker Killed In Freak Accident

BELLEVILLE, Ill. (AP) — A 51-year-old truck driver was killed in a freak highway accident near Belleville, Tuesday.

He was Erwin Jung of 723 N. Church St., Belleville. Illinois highway police said Jung was thrown from his pickup towing truck when a threshing combine being towed hit the side of a bridge on Ill. 158.

He was dead on arrival at St. Elizabeth's hospital.

Stevenson Steps Up Battle with Eisenhower; Hits A-Power Policies

SEATTLE, Wash. (AP)—Adlai E. Stevenson squared off today for a person-to-person battle with President Eisenhower by striking the Republican incumbent squarely in the middle of his pet project—atoms for peace.

With every speech in the Northwest, Stevenson directed his oratorical jabs more directly at the President himself. It became increasingly evident that this would be his strategy as he headed down the Pacific coast for California.

Stevenson was scheduled to leave Seattle by plane this afternoon for Portland, Ore. He will speak there tonight both in his own behalf and for incumbent Wayne Morse, who is fighting former Interior Secretary Douglas McKay for a Senate seat.

Sails Into Eisenhower
In his Seattle speech Tuesday night, Stevenson first sailed in to Mr. Eisenhower on political grounds. He said the Chief Executive had stepped up his campaign because his "worried Republican managers" had told him "a part-time president is all right, but they cannot afford a part-time candidate."

However, he saved his major artillery for a new attack on the atomic power policies of the administration. He challenged the sincerity of the administration in its "atoms for peace" program. This was the plan that Mr. Eisenhower put before the United Nations in December, 1953, right after the Big Three meeting in Bermuda.

The President proposed creation of an international pool of fissionable material and knowledge. He pledged the United States to make a major contribution of material and know-how in the development of peacetime atomic energy.

Says Plan Lifted Hopes
Stevenson said the plan lifted the hopes of power-poor countries throughout the world. However, he said that as the months went on, the Eisenhower administration lagged behind the British—and possibly the Russians—in developing programs for building atomic power plants.

He said the biggest difficulty was that the Atomic Energy Commission had "abdicated its major responsibility in this field to the private power industry."

Fire Outside Plant Sets Off Factory's Automatic Sprinkler

EFFINGHAM, Ill. (AP)—A chain-reaction type fire caused water damage at the Illinois Glove Factory here today.

A trash fire behind the plant ignited a pile of scrap leather near a back window. The heat from the leather fire broke the window and set off an automatic sprinkler system even though the fire was outside.

Manager V. J. Newbanks said damage to a large consignment of gloves will run into "several hundreds of dollars."

Ass'n for Crippled Elects Officers

Re-elected to a second term as president of the Southern Illinois Association For The Crippled, Inc. at its recent annual board meeting at Carbondale was Rep. Clyde L. Choate of Anna. Other officers elected were L. V. Lipe, Chester, 1st vice president; W. E. McAllister, Centralia, 2nd vice president; Mrs. Arthur Thistlewood Jr., Cairo, secretary; and John T. Mars, Carbondale, treasurer. Appointed to the executive board were J. C. McCormick, Olmsted, and Mr. Wendell Lathrop, Lawrenceville.

Two items of major interest to the 33 county area of the Southern Illinois Association for the Crippled, were handled during the business session of the organization.

One item was the approval to establish yearly, two extensions of the Carbondale Easter Seal Therapy Center for one year periods as demonstration programs. The Carbondale center providing speech and hearing and related services is co-sponsored with Southern Illinois University.

Another item of major importance was the adoption of a proposed long range program of service to the crippled of the area. This long range program involves the establishment of other treatment centers, geographically situated to serve the needs of the area. It involves a special plan for St. Clair county designed to serve one of the unmet needs of the handicapped in that area.

Mr. Choate said that each segment of the long range plan will be initiated according to the area of next greatest needs as soon as finances become available.

Russell Malan, Harrisburg, represents the board of directors of the Southern Illinois Association For The Crippled, Inc. in this area.

Heart Disease, Cancer Continue To Lead Deaths

SPRINGFIELD, Ill. — As in recent years, heart disease and cancer continued to be the leading causes of death in Illinois during 1955.

For the first time in recorded history, tuberculosis was not among the 10 leading killers, according to the 1955 final vital statistics report released here today by Dr. Roland R. Cross, director of the state Department of Public Health.

With 41,365 deaths attributed to heart disease and 15,670 to cancer, these two diseases accounted for about 60 per cent of the state's mortality from all causes combined—a total of 95,585.

The death rate from heart disease at 441.9 per 100,000 population was slightly higher than the 1954 rate of 421.2 but less than the 1953 rate of 451.4. Similarly, the death rate from cancer at 167.4 was about the same as the rates for 1954 and 1953.

"The fact that the death rates from heart disease and cancer have kept fairly level during the past decade, despite an increase in the number of older people in the population, is evidence of some success in overcoming these diseases," Dr. Cross said.

Ranking third in the leading causes of mortality in the state last year were vascular lesions affecting the central nervous system, with a total of 9,943 deaths. All accidents were in fourth place, with 4,981 fatalities. The death rate from accidents at 53.2 per 100,000 compares with a rate of 54.2 in 1954 and 60.8 as late as 1952.

Fifth in the 1955 mortality list were congenital malformations and certain diseases of early infancy, 4,414 deaths; followed by pneumonia and influenza, 3,369; general arteriosclerosis, 1,784; diabetes, 1,294; nephritis and nephrosis, 1,191; and suicide 935. With 898 deaths reported, tuberculosis dropped into 11th place last year, after having ranked 10th in 1954.

Martin Conducts Survey of Home Fire Hazards

Throughout National Fire Prevention Week, October 8 through 13, Fire Chief Martin of the Harrisburg Fire Department plans to be actively engaged in conducting a survey of home fire hazards. He and his men are distributing questionnaire forms with which any homeowner can grade his fire prevention status in a few minutes.

These questionnaire forms present, both pictorially and in question form, 31 common fire hazards which occur in the home and by simply verifying the list against his home conditions, a homeowner can readily determine its status from a fire prevention standpoint.

Additionally, Chief Martin participated in a radio program yesterday in the interest of fire prevention. He discussed many of the important fire hazards and ways to prevent them.

Also as a part of this survey, each student of the Harrisburg Township high school will be presented with a questionnaire form and requested to list the hazards in his home.

In an effort to promote student interest in fire prevention, the local insurance agency of Robertson-Ghent will give a $25 Series E government bond to the lucky Harrisburg Township high school student who accomplishes this survey according to the rules and regulations as announced by Eltis Henson, school principal. All students are eligible.

Annual High School Guest Day At SIU October 20

CARBONDALE, Ill. — Juniors and seniors in 185 southern Illinois high schools have been invited to Southern Illinois University, October 20, for annual High School Guest Day activities.

Sponsored by the SIU Student Council and Office of Student Affairs, the program will open with registration from 1-3 p. m. in the Student Union.

Sandra Unger, Hoopston, Student Council president, will welcome the high school visitors at 2 p. m. in Shryock Auditorium. A variety show presented by SIU students will be followed by tours of the campus. Members of Alpha Phi Omega and Girls Rally, campus service organizations, will be guides.

Refreshments will be served at a "Chat and Snack" hour from 3:30 to 5 p. m. on the Woody Hall terrace. Hosts will be I. Clark Davis, acting director of the Office of Student Affairs, and Mrs. Davis.

Commando Kelly Aided by Friends

PITTSBURGH (AP)—Charles (Commando) Kelly, Pittsburgh's World War II hero now living in Louisville, Ky., will get $500 now and $50 a week for the next 11 months from his hometown friends.

Allegheny County Commissioner John M. Walker said $2,700 was collected for the Congressional Medal of Honor winner after it was learned he was sick, broke and out of work.

Sgt. Thomas F. Carter, son of Mr. and Mrs. T. F. Carter, 206 East McIlrath, recently participated in a field training exercise with the 11th Airborne Division in Germany. A section leader in Company H of the division's 511th Infantry Regiment, Carter entered the Army in January of 1950.

Pvt. Joseph A. Logsdon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas O. Logsdon, Shawneetown, recently qualified as expert in firing the M-1 rifle at Fort Leonard Wood, Mo. He is assigned to Company C of the 2nd Basic Training Regiment and entered the Army in August of this year. His wife is the former Miss Mary Anne Humm of this city.

Eugene E. Bridwell Jr., son of Mr. and Mrs. Eugene E. Bridwell has graduated from recruit training at the Naval Training center at Great Lakes.

Robert C. Bradley, fireman USN, son of William B. Bradley, returned to San Diego, Calif., recently aboard the destroyer USS Marshall after a six month cruise of the Western Pacific. Most of the cruise was spent in task force exercises and operations with the Formosa patrol.

Officers Elected At Saline County WCTU Convention

The Saline County WCTU convention was held Friday, Oct. 5, at the First Presbyterian church in this city.

The morning session began with group singing of "The New Crusade." The devotion for the morning session was given by Mrs. Bess Aldridge. Her subject was "Remember the Sabbath," reading from Leviticus and Jeremiah.

Mrs. Esther Gall gave a report on her trip to Winona Lake this summer as a reward for committing 250 verses of scripture to memory.

The business session was conducted by Mrs. R. G. Putnam, Eldorado, president of the county unit.

Departmental reports were given and the following officers were elected for the coming year:

President, Mrs. Muriel Holland, Harrisburg; vice president, Mrs. R. G. Putnam, Eldorado; secretary, Mrs. Thelma Nelson, Texas City; treasurer, Miss Stella Greenfield, Raleigh.

The morning session was closed with prayer by Mrs. Mollie Swinney, Eldorado.

The afternoon session opened with the hymn, "More About Jesus." Mrs. Clayton Slack sang a solo, "Suddenly There is a Valley," accompanied by Mrs. Dale Sullivan at the piano. The devotion was given by Mrs. Millie Skelton, Eldorado.

The group was welcomed by Mrs. Gall and the response was given by Mrs. Emma Phelps, Texas City.

The guest speaker for the afternoon was the Rev. Leroy Marvel. Mrs. Putnam gave the group a report from the national WCTU convention which she attended.

Egyptian Fire Fighters to Meet Southern Illinois

The Egyptian Fire Fighters association of Southern Illinois will meet Wednesday, Oct. 17, at Benton. Thirty-two counties, 135 cities, 208 pieces of equipment and 3,070 firemen will be represented at the meeting.

The meeting will be for all fire departments, city officials and all persons interested in fire fighting and fire prevention.

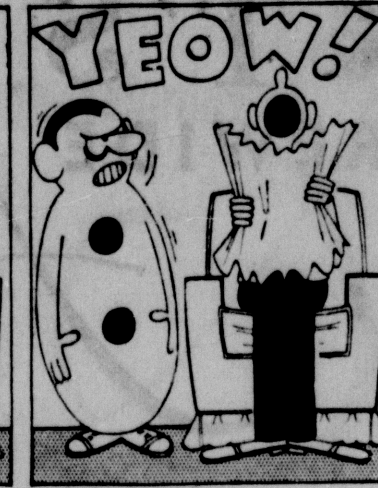

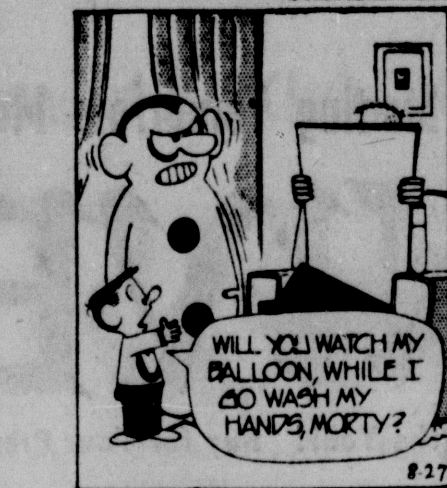

Initiated Into Oklahoma Glee Club

Oren Brown, 1004 South Granger street, has been initiated into the Bison Glee club, famous Oklahoma Baptist university men's chorus. He is one of 19 men accepted as pledges this fall at Shawnee, Okla., where he is a sophomore.

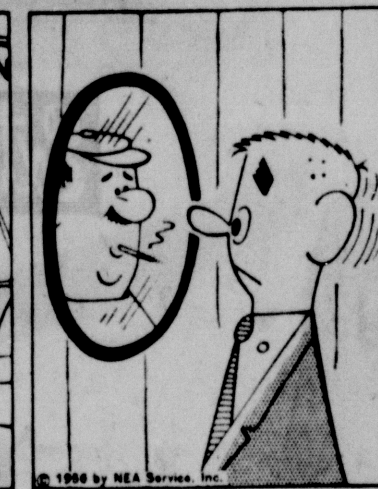

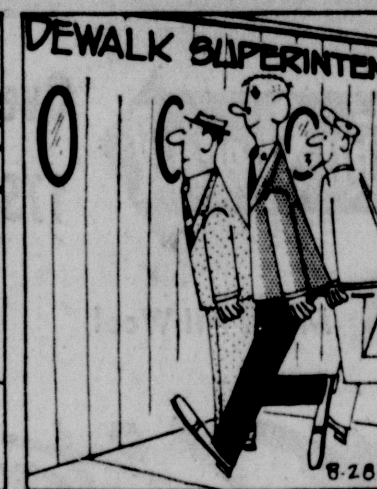

The glee club, organized in 1938, has appeared in cities throughout the United States as well as presented programs in TV and coast to coast radio broadcasts.

Their busy fall schedule includes a concert for the Southern Illinois Rotary convention this month and the state Baptist convention in Oklahoma City, Okla., in November.

The medical worker snapped his fingers. "I remember the bracelet. Had a gold chain."

"Where did she go?"

"Getting excited ain't gonna do no good. They moved her out after the doc worked on her. Lessee, they ain't much left of Monroe Hospital... she probably was sent to Roosevelt or Medical Center. You know where?"

"Sure. I know where they are. How bad... is she... how bad is she hurt?"

"I don't remember, kid. All I know is that if they worked on her in this butcher shop, it's something which can be pretty bad. But that could mean a broken leg or something like that which'll get better. Anyway, I don't remember any of the details."

"I've got to get to her!"

The man hesitated. "I ain't supposed to do this, but I suppose nobody'll be the worse for it." He pointed to a truck where two men were fastening the backboard into place. "That truck's going to Roosevelt, and there's just as much chance for her to be there as at the city medical center."

They walked to the truck.

"Hey Phil!" The driver turned around. "This kid has to get over to Roosevelt. How about a lift for him?"

The driver nodded assent.

Less than a half mile from the blinding fireball, Monroe Hospital was simultaneously bathed in light and flooded with invisible torrents of gamma rays and neutrons. In another instant—a timeless moment!—the blast tore with incredible violence into the many-windowed, white building. The upper floors bulged, then disappeared in a shower of glass, wood, plaster, blood, beds, fixtures, curtains, patients, blankets and sheets, doctors, medicine, flowers, paper, nurses, equipment, brick and steel. The shower dissolved into a spray which blew into and erupted thru the collapsing walls for hundreds of feet beyond the hospital. Not a soul above the second floor of Monroe Hospital lived; only a few dazed, broken, and dying individuals on the ground floor survived the passage of the blast.

Beneath the surface of the earth, shielded within their subterranean chamber by walls of concrete and steel, the men, women and children covered before the thunder, vibration, and collapse of the building about them.

They lived, unharmed.

Within scant seconds the steel, mortar, bricks, and stone of the collapsing upper floors descended upon the basement level in a veritable avalanche of debris. Fires broke out in the tangled wreckage. The hospital was a mass of ruins, its steel frames and girders bared to the swirling dust like a great, grisly skeleton.

The basement provided life against the monstrous force of the atom. It had also become a trap. Roosevelt Medical Center and City Hospital observed the same precautions which were followed at Monroe Hospital. Then the light, interminable seconds later, the onrushing fist of the blast. These hospitals, however, were in the extreme eastern part of the city, and the fireball raged nearly two miles away. The blast enveloped the buildings, punched in windows, shredded drapes and bedding, shattered medical cases, kicked up a storm of dust, petrified the patients and most of the doctors and nurses, and returned for its second-long suction phase. The noise was incredible, damage to windows and materials extensive, the dust choking, but that was all.

The buildings stood; nobody was killed.

Unknown to the other occupants in Roosevelt Medical Center, a doctor, several nurses and attendants, and an unconscious young woman were the characters in a tense drama in which death was thwarted and new life borne into the world even as the atom exploded in its elemental fury.

Two minutes after the explosion the whisper of a new life pierced the thunderous rumble of the rising mushroom pillar.

Even as death claimed its tens of thousands of victims in the city, the doctor held in his hands the legs of the unseeing, screaming child. It was a good sound.

Like the medical teams, the equipment, supplies and manpower of the greater bulk of the engineering, utilities, and other emergency services which surged into Harrington came not from the shattered city itself, or from its immediate environs, but from the surrounding communities and counties.

Each sector headquarters, far into the area of actual "combat," received the unceasing requests from the men in the field. Each sector commander relayed the requests back to his individual zone headquarters, which in turn passed the multitude of requests on to the city control center. The center's supply officer began to scrape the bottom of the barrel throughout the support area, and renewed his urgent requests to state headquarters for additional aid.

The statewide situation had changed. Two more cities were hit. That made six in our state alone!

No help is available from other state support areas. You will have to do the best you can with what you have.

Federal aid? No.

One hundred thirty-seven cities have been bombed. Eleven with hydrogen bombs.

Woodmen to Hold Fall Convention at Carbondale Oct. 21

Carbondale will be the site of the fall convention of Southern No. 3 District of Illinois, Supreme Forest Woodmen Circle, Oct. 21. Registration will be held at 1:30 p. m. in the I. O. O. F. hall. Mayor John Wright of Carbondale will welcome the guests at the afternoon session which begins at 2. Following a dinner, the evening session will begin at 7:30. The program will include musical numbers.

Several drill teams from throughout the district will exemplify the society's ritualistic ceremonies. Mrs. Evelyn Gill, of Marion, is State Captain.

District President Frances Joiner, of Golconda, who is also State Chaplain, will preside at the meeting. Mrs. Pauline Keller of Carbondale, National Representative, is chairman of the local committee on arrangements. Grove No. 192 of Carbondale is hostess grove.

State Manager Gladys Shamp, of Springfield, and State President Myrtle Trammell, of Marion, are among society officials who will attend the convention. Mrs. Stella Smith, Past State President, and Mrs. Elizabeth Hannebique, State Assistant Attendant, Johnston City, will also be present.

Plans for attending the State Convention in Springfield next May and for sending a drill team to the 1957 National Convention will be discussed.

Thinking It Over

By Robert L. Dieffenbacher, D.D. (Written for NEA Service)

A call to high duty is one which we accept as an honor and as a privilege. When we are asked to accept a great responsibility we feel obligated to do the best we can.

Our nation is built on a philosophy of each person doing the job for which he thinks he is best fitted. We believe that each one must assume his full share of the total work which must be done.

Whether we are called to serve the nation, the state, the community or a single local charity we do our best. We serve whether we receive public acclaim or whether we receive more personal satisfaction.

When God calls us to the work of the church or the responsibilities of ourselves we make excuses. Of course we do not receive public acclaim for religious duties. We are not publicized for emulating the Prince of Peace. We receive no scrolls for helping to bear the cross of our neighbors.

Opportunities for saying a kind word or for understanding a frustrated adolescent slip off our shoulders like drops of water off a duck's back. The privilege of drying a few tears or of listening to the heartbreaks of our friends is considered by many as a bore or as a nuisance.

Why can we not accept the call of God with the same enthusiasm that we accept the call of some sector of government or of society?

Aircraft Carrier Enterprise Put Up For Sale for Scrap

WASHINGTON (AP)—The famed old aircraft carrier Enterprise, veteran of 20 World War II battles in the Pacific, was put up for sale as scrap by the Navy Monday.

The Navy decided that the 20-year old ship, now mothballed near Bayonne, N. J., is not worth repairing or modernizing to handle present aircraft and guns.

Churches to Stress Need for Personal Giving

WASHINGTON (AP) — Thousands of American churches will take a new approach to fund-raising in their "every member canvasses" this fall.

Instead of talking about the church's need for money, they will emphasize the individual's need to give.

The idea is to get each member to think of his pledge as a concrete expression of his gratitude to God rather than as "my share of the church budget."

Churches which have tried this kind of appeal report phenomenal results. In some cases, pledges have been increased by 50 per cent in the first year.

More important, according to many ministers, this increased giving usually is accompanied by improved attendance at worship services, greater vigor in parish activities, and other evidence of a general spiritual uplift among the members.

The "gratitude giving" concept, of course, is not really a new idea. It is as old as Christ's teaching that "where a man's treasure is, there will his heart be also."

But its rediscovery by modern churches, as the most meaningful basis for religious contributions, is a comparatively recent development.

For years most U. S. Protestant churches have based their annual contributions canvasses traditionally conducted in October or November on the budget for the coming year. This budget outlined what the church would need to pay the preacher, keep the furnace going, meet the denominational quota for foreign missions support, and other necessary expenses.

The widespread use of the "new" approach this fall resulted in part from a conference sponsored during the summer by the National Council of Churches. Officials of 15 denominations met at Lake Geneva, Wis., for a "workshop" on methods of conducting "stewardship canvasses."

They returned to their separate headquarters to spread the word to local churches across the nation. If stewardship catches on nationally as it has in some pioneering local churches, it is safe to predict that there will be a sharp rise in the figure which represents the average American Protestant's contribution to his church. That figure is now 94 cents a week.

Eliot Drills Illini Against Mistakes For Ohio State Tilt

CHAMPAIGN, Ill. — Head Coach Ray Eliot of the Illini drilled his squad in accuracy today as they prepared to meet Ohio State here this Saturday.

"We're going to have to be in the proper frame of mind to have a chance with that great team," Eliot said. "Too, we've got to combat making so many mistakes. In both games we've played mistakes have caused 99 percent of our difficulties."

Eliot said there would be no changes in lineup unless injuries changed the picture.

Eliot, anxious to use Bobby Mitchell in the game, said he would have to give his star player a thorough test in drills first. Mitchell was sidelined three weeks ago by a pre-season practice injury.

The Illini came out of their game with Washington last Saturday without serious injury.

Illini Scout Leo Johnson, meanwhile, reported that the Ohio State team is better than its championship 1955 team.

"Don Clark, 188-pound sophomore," Johnson said, "is potentially as good as All-America Howard Cassidy and he's giving a real spark to a team which otherwise is big and powerful and strong on defense."

Johnson said Clark made the difference in OSU's game with Stanford last Saturday. "He's faster than Cassidy, but naturally hasn't developed into the all-around star which Hopalong was last year."

Had to Come Through Once, Robinson Says

Editors note: Jackie Robinson's 10th inning single drove in the run that gave the Dodgers a 1-0 victory over the Yankees today and tied the World Series at three games apiece. In the following dispatch, he tells how he did it.

By JACKIE ROBINSON

As Told To The United Press

BROOKLYN — I had three chances with men on base Tuesday and I figured I had to come through at least once.

Bob Turley kept throwing me fast balls all day. He kept them high, too, until the 10th. Then he got one a little down and that's the one I jumped on.

When I saw the ball start out to left field I kept hoping it would sink. I felt if it didn't, Enos Slaughter was bound to grab it for just another out. But the next time I looked I saw the ball going over his head. I could see Junior Gilliam coming in with the winning run so I just trotted down to first. A single was all we needed and that's all I wanted.

Turley looked as fast to me today as Don Larsen did Monday when he pitched that perfect game against us, but Turley's curve wasn't as good as Larsen's.

Regardless, he pitched a tremendous ball game. Luckily for us, Clem Labine was a little bit better.

The way I see the series now, we're in a better position than the Yankees. We're playing Wednesday's game in our own park and that should give us a big edge.

We haven't been hitting like we should be, but I have a hunch we're going to snap out of it Wednesday.

Anyway, I'm glad my base hit gave us another shot at the Yankees. We all sure would've been dragging if the Yankees had wound it up by shutting us out for the second straight time today.

But like they always say in baseball:

Tomorrow is another day.

Dodgers Agree Turley is Fast

BROOKLYN — Duke Snider thinks Bob Turley of the Yankees is the fastest pitcher the Dodgers faced this year, but Jackie Robinson disagrees.

"Johnny Antonelli of the Giants was faster in a game against us in Jersey City," said Robinson.

Said Roy Campanella, "all I know is Turley struck out 11 batters, including me three times. When you see me swishing and never even getting a foul tip, man you know that pitcher is real fast."

THE BIGGER THEY COME...

Misplays or Circumstances Put Slaughter on Spot as Series Goal

BROOKLYN — Enos Slaughter, one of the greatest clutch players in baseball history, is on the spot today as a possible 1956 World Series goal.

Did the 39 year old New York Yankee outfielder misplay three balls, including Jackie Robinson's game-winning, 10th-inning single in Tuesday's 1-0 Brooklyn Dodger triumph? Or did circumstances just happen to make Enos look bad?

The question probably will be debated as long as World Series are talked about without anyone arriving at a conclusive decision. But it's quite likely that, of all the games old Enos has played, he'll least like to recall the sixth game of the 1956 World Series.

The Yankees' sentimental hero of the Series ran into trouble early when Junior Gilliam lifted a routine fly to left field with one out in the third inning. Enos loomed in under the ball, then lost it in the sun, and let it drop for a single. Gilliam tried for two and the alert Slaughter grabbed the ball and threw to Billy Martin for the putout.

Ill-luck again came Enos' way in the eighth inning of the tense struggle when pitcher Clem Labine lifted a high fly close to the left field foul line. At first, it seemed the ball might go all the way for a home run but it fell short close to a protruding section of the stands but still just inside the foul line.

Slaughter raced over to take the ball but stopped about five feet short of the protruding fence. The ball dropped for a double.

And then, of course, there was some question whether Enos should have caught Jackie Robinson's game-winning liner in the 10th. At first, it appeared the ball would be caught and then, suddenly, it was over Enos' head and off the wall and Junior Gilliam was streaking over the plate.

Elect Cheer Leaders At Carrier Mills High

Cheer leaders at the Carrier Mills Community High school were elected Tuesday morning as follows:

"A" squad—Joan Dunn, Janice Harwood, Mary Holmes, Phoebe Holmes and Shirley Pyle;

"B" squad—Joyce Absher, Katherine Mathews, Pat Dunn, Sue Hutson and Mary Rose Todd.

TUMBLING ACT—Brooklyn Dodger's outfielder Duke Snider (top) goes to his knees as he catches drive off the bat of Hank Bauer of the Yankees in the first inning of the fourth World Series game. Snider hit the turf (bottom) but held on to the ball for the out. The Yankees won 6-2. (NEA Telephoto)

STRICTLY ALL-AMERICA — Tommy McDonald, Oklahoma's All-America halfback, is also a member of the All-American scholastic team. The running pitcher studies with his girl friend, Ann Campbell, fifth ranking Miss America and Miss Football of 1955. Nice work if you can get it.

Minnesota Player, Called Off Bench, Is Player of Week

MINNEAPOLIS — Ken Bombardier, whose slashing plunges on the football field match his name, wasn't even listed among the first 33 Minnesota players for last Saturday's game with Purdue.

He left the field as the United Press midwest back of the week.

The nominally-fourth string left halfback came off the bench to spark the Gophers' first touchdown drive with two key first downs, score the winning touchdown and intercept a Len Dawson pass which saved the 21-14 victory.

Despite the fact he sat on the bench through most of the first half, Bombardier carried the ball more often than any other Gopher. He picked up 57 yards on 14 carries, most of them when they counted most.

His late fourth-period interception of Dawson's pass put a stop to the last Boilermaker threat.

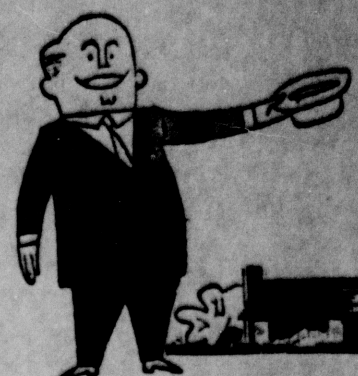

Hunters Warned To Avoid Killing Wood Ducks

SPRINGFIELD — Hunters were warned today to avoid killing the wood duck during the upcoming duck season or face prosecution.

Conservation Director Glen D. Palmer said a closed season has been ordered for the wood duck because of a serious decline in their number. Last year a bag limit of one wood duck daily was permitted.

Palmer suggested hunters study silhouettes of the wood duck to become familiar with its appearance and avoid shooting it.

John W. Allen

John W. Allen of SIU, Known as 'Mr. Southern Illinois History,' Retires

CARBONDALE, Ill. (UP) — "Mr. Southern Illinois History," who gained his reputation as a columnist through an editor's desperation, has "retired."

But retirement to John W. Allen will be a springboard to statewide free lance writing about his beloved Illinois.

On Oct. 13 in Chicago, Allen will step down as president of the Illinois State Historical Society, the day before his 69th birthday.

For the last three years Allen has been writing a weekly column, "It Happened in Southern Illinois," for the Information Service at Southern Illinois University in Carbondale.

Bill Lyons, director of the service, says Allen first presented about a dozen of the articles for the release. "At first I thought they were too long, but John was getting jumpy about releasing them, so I finally mailed them out in desperation," says Lyons.

To Continue Series

The articles now are being used by some 115 daily and weekly newspapers. Irving Dillard of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch recently dubbed Allen "Mr. Southern Illinois History" at a newspaper editors conference at SIU.

Allen, who once worked for SIU as curator of its museum and historical director, was "pensioned" by the university a month ago. But he is under contract to continue his popular folklore and historical series.

In a few weeks Allen will set out in a 15-foot house trailer as a free lance writer to expand his coverage to all of Illinois.

In his writing, he can draw upon his experience as a farmer, teacher, soldier, historian, author, lecturer, construction superintendent and folklorist.

Native of Broughton

Allen says many researchers use appellate court records for their material. He prefers justice of the peace dockets, attics, basements, letters and diaries for his source

TIME TO RETIRE:

John W. Allen Reminisces as He Ends His Teaching Career

JOHN W. ALLEN

Southern Illinois University

Perhaps anyone who has spent a lifetime at a particular task should be allowed to pause and reminisce a bit when the time comes for parting. That time is here for the writer and although reminiscence and "reminisance" sound much alike, he wants to claim the privilege.

Just over 62 years ago a barefoot lad trudged along a dusty Southern Illinois road to his first day in a country school and into a new world. That youngster had no thought whatever that the schoolroom to which he was introduced that day would remain a first interest through life and that before he left it time would sprinkle his head with chalk dust until his hair was white. Such proved true, however.

It was the thought of this ending that brought him to sit a while during the afternoon of his "last day of school" and muse over the years during which he has been associated with school work in various ways.

The memories are pleasant ones. Though there were disagreeable features connected with occasional incidents that are recalled, time has somehow dulled the sharp edges. The pleasant features have been more enduring.

Few Regrets

Thoughts of retirement and of the many years spent in schoolrooms bring few regrets. Such regrets as there are arise chiefly from things not done, sins of omission rather than those of commission.

Altogether, retirement is welcomed. This is particularly true since it comes while reasonable health and vigor remain.

The financial rewards of teaching have been very modest, but on the other hand the pleasant memories, the friendships and the associations formed during the years have reached astronomical proportions and somewhat compensate for the money shortage. Anyway, by strict observance of the latter half of Benjamin Franklin's admonition, "Earn more or want less," a reasonably comfortable life can be lived.

Many of the features of the schools I first knew have disappeared, and these passings have aroused momentary regrets, now only dimly remembered. It has been pleasant, however, to see the improvements that have come.

One-Room Schools Disappearing

The entire school pattern of that day was different from the one of the present. Then, with muddy and sometimes almost impassable roads, school districts were small. One room schools dotted the countryside. Now, those one-room schools are fast disappearing. Despite their handicaps and deficiencies they did a good work.

These earlier schools with their strange bits of equipment and fittings appear odd today. Gone are the long, home-made recitation benches, the double desks, the blackboards painted on the walls, the wood burning box stove that was red-hot one instant and almost cold the next.

Gone also are the clusters of wraps and lunch pails that were found beside the front door, often in an anteroom where the food would freeze before noonday in the winter. Gone also are the pointer and the switches that often reposed on nails or pegs on the wall behind and above the teacher's desk as silent admonitions to better behavior. Likewise, the wooden water bucket with its common drinking cup, dipper or even a gourd is no longer seen. Neither are the wooden backed erasers and the soft crumbly chalk that preceded the "dustless" brand.

Legendary Teachers

With those have gone the shattered and patched window panes, the rough untreated floors, often littered with gobs of mud carried in on boots and shoes. Along with all these have passed the old-time legendary teachers, men who farmed in summer and taught in winter. They often had little training beyond that equivalent to the eighth grade in a country school similar to the ones in which they taught.

The dress of the youngsters then would appear odd now. Some came to school barefoot until frosty weather. Straw hats for boys and poke bonnets or hoods for girls were common wearing apparel. Much of the clothing was home-made; often it was made over from the outgrown clothes of older brothers and sisters. High top leather boots and button shoes were the style.

The well nourished look of pupils now was absent then, when "peaked" children were common. Eyes were "weak" and spectacles were very uncommon. Personal cleanliness was at low ebb. Scabies and head lice were occasionally found. The contrast in looks of both pupils and schoolhouses between then and now would be striking.

The games played were different from the ones of today. Their sports were mostly those that emphasized individual strengths and skills. There were not many team games. Among the almost forgotten games were hat ball, bull pen, old sow, shinny, rooster fighting, Indian wrestling (rasslin'), burn out, mumble peg, whip cracker, sling dutch, Spanish leap frog, setting pegs, wolf on the ridge, stink base and one and over. Perhaps the boys do still play jail, war or policeman.

Would Be "Better" Teacher

Pupils of those one-room country schools varied greatly in age. There were those barely old enough to go and others 'of age. There was no organized course of study, and pupils often went at their own pace. There were 'B' and 'A' classes. One who could "solve every problem in Ray's Third" was accounted a mathematician. When a pupil had finished the work the school offered, he often 'took it over again.' Older boys began attendance after the fall work was done and quit when spring plowing began. The very young often dropped out during the severe parts of the winter.

Qualifications of the teacher, aside from a certain earnestness, were often limited. A few grown-up boys and girls left after the equivalent of today's eighth grade, took the county superintendent's examination, and obtained a teacher's certificate. The writer entered the profession in that way.

This could go on indefinitely. During the years since he went wonderingly down the dusty road to his first day of school that one-time barefoot boy has seen schools transformed. He wonders what an one-time barefoot boy has seen schools transformed. He wonders what an one-time barefoot boy has seen schools transformed.

One question has repeatedly been asked: "If the opportunity could be had to live it all over, would you be a teacher again? The answer is "YES, but a better one."

The first baseball game played in America was between the Knickerbockers and the New York Nine, June 19, 1846.

Local Girls Attend Meeting Of FHA Officers

Recently all chapter Future Homemakers of America officers in Section III met at the Mount Vernon Township high school for the annual House of Delegates leadership session. The purpose of the meeting is to give each officer ideas that will help or improve her chapter of F. H. A.

The featured speaker, Albert Parker of Mount Vernon, gave a most interesting talk on "The Teen-Age Consumer."

Section III officers are: President, Carla Stuby, Harrisburg; vice president, Mary Ellen Storckman, Allendale; secretary, Joyce Foreman, Mt. Vernon; treasurer, Jacqueline Piper, Cisne; historian, Ruth Teegarden, Equality; parliamentarian, Ina Joyce Natier, McLeansboro; projects chairman, Barbara Dunkel, Mt. Carmel; recreation chairman, Thelma Smith, Albion; public relations, Pauletta Drone, Ridgway.

Mrs. Joe Collins, Ridgway, is section mother.

It was decided that the Spring rally would be held in Mt. Carmel. Mrs. Louise Cothran is chairman of the homemaking teachers in Section III.

Girls going to the House of Delegates from Harrisburg were Janet Hall, Judy Josey, Donna Wise, Linda Booten, Carla Stuby, Marilyn Day, Shelby Fritch, Martha Gibbs and Frances Brown. Mrs. Louise Cothran, Mrs. Helen Murphy, chapter sponsors, and Mrs. J. O. Hall, chapter mother, accompanied the girls.

Herrin Awards Bid For Swimming Pool

HERRIN, Ill. (UP) — A $102,931 contract for construction of a swimming pool was awarded Monday night by the Herrin Park District Board to Knute Aronson, Herrin contractor, who was the low bidder.

Fred Lowe, board president, said the pool will be 40 by 110 feet with an additional 35 by 40 foot diving well. The pool is expected to be ready for opening by next May 31.
